News and information for the Church of England in and around Gloucestershire

From the Archdeacon of Cheltenham, Hedley Ringrose

As my retirement from full time ministry draws closer, I have reflected on the many changes and opportunities I have seen and experienced during more than forty years as a priest, a few of which I share briefly.

The first is worship and liturgy. The approved liturgy of the church has developed through a series of changes, so that we now have huge resources of authorised material that bring freshness and variety to our worship. The much loved Book of Common Prayer is still greatly valued by those of us whose faith was nurtured on it, but if you have not already done so, I encourage you to discover the joy of being more flexible in your worship, because for me this has opened new insights into the mystery and wonder of God's nature.

The second and equally important change has been the rediscovery and growth of every member ministry, together with the blossoming of latent gifts in many people. We see in the New Testament and in the church throughout the centuries, that God calls all kinds of people to follow Christ, often in situations that surprise us. We mustn't limit him and in my experience we grow in faith when we are required to step outside our comfort zone.

The third point is the importance of ministry to children and young people. As a parish priest, involvement in local schools was a high priority for me, but at the same time it has always been an extremely rewarding and valuable ministry.

Our Diocese is produced monthly by Lucy Taylor, the Communications Officer and Katherine Woolford, Assistant Communications Officer for the Diocese of Gloucester at Church House, College Green, Gloucester, GL1 2LY. It is available on www.gloucester.anglican.org, and emailed to all parish and church representatives who request it. Paper copies are also available on request. To submit items, please email to ltaylor@glosdioc.org.uk or kwoolford@glosdioc.org.uk, call 01452 835515 or send to the address above.

As archdeacon, my close involvement in education has continued through chairing the Diocesan Board of Education, now the Children and Young People Department. Our parishes are well placed and resourced to meet and encounter children in the place where they spend a great deal of their time and it is encouraging to see how many church members are involved in schools as teachers, staff, governors or through 'Open the Book'. I have always found that we have much to learn from the young and the young in faith.

Finally, it has been a huge privilege to share with many people and families, often at significant points in their life, some happy and others sad. As archdeacon I have come to know many wonderful people. Rosemary and I thank you all for your friendship and support and we pray that you will continue to make the wonder of Christ's Incarnation a present day reality, pouring out God's love in the communities you serve.

Hedley Ringrose

Farewell Service

To mark Hedley's and Rosemary's departure a Farewell Eucharist will be held in Gloucester Cathedral on Friday 27 November at 7.30 pm. All are welcome.

Training, resources and opportunities for all

Around our diocese....

Inspires is going digital

The official Diocese of Gloucester magazine inspires, will be re-launched this December in a new, interactive digital format. Inspires is a FREE publication and contains a lively mix of features and analysis, news stories and reports, reviews, devotional material and events listings for all in and around Gloucestershire. It is produced three times a year at Easter, Harvest and Christmas. Hard copies of the magazine will still be available in every church, but now it will also be available as a revolutionary online publication. Features include:

- An easy navigation system, which lets readers turn pages like a paper publication –just like reading a newspaper
- E-mail addresses and websites in articles will be hyperlinked, taking readers straight to other websites
- Video and audio clips will be embedded into articles
- Exceptional zoom quality improves your viewing experience and it will fit every screen resolution

More information on the new online inspires will be coming soon. To find out further information on inspires and to sign up to receive an 'inspires alert' after each issue is published, contact Lucy Taylor on 01452 835515 or email ltaylor@glosdioc.org.uk
