'Who you are, is more than how you look.'

That's the message that Bishop Rachel has been sharing with children and young people across our diocese and beyond as part of her #Iedentity campaign.

In response to the growing body of evidence highlighting the unhappiness of many young people due to body image anxiety, Bishop Rachel launched the #Iedentity campaign in 2016 to challenge negative body image in children and young people and encourage them to look within to discover true value and beauty.

Bishop Rachel said. "Many young people today are sourcing their identities from social media and advertising and in the process often losing their self-esteem.

"So much of what they experience through social media presents a message of value based on physical appearance. I long for every young person to discover their worth as a unique individual created in the image of God and to find happiness as they go on becoming who they have been created to be."

36% of girls aged 7 to 10 say people make them think that the most important thing about them is how they look

In 11 to 16 year olds we found that more than a third 36% were willing to do 'whatever it takes to look good' and that nearly two thirds 63% said what other people think of their looks is important to them

Bishop Rachel has been visiting schools, youth groups and worshipping communities and intentionally talking about this issue and listening and reflecting with young people on their personal experiences.

On 20 February she is hosting a national conference on this issue with the aim to raise awareness and to share knowledge and resources, to help us discover how we can all play an active role to promote confidence in the young people with whom we engage.

The event is open to all who work with children and young people, but spaces are limited. For more information and to register, visit www.gloucester.anglican.org/parish-resources/communications/liedentity

"The Lord said to Samuel, 'Do not look on his appearance ... For the Lord sees not as man sees: man looks on the outward appearance, but the Lord looks on the heart.'" (1 Samuel 16:7)

The PEEL project: Exploring self identity

This month, the Diocese of Gloucester, in partnership with ASHA and the British Computing Society, is piloting a resource to help young people recognise the true value of others.

In a workshop setting, young people are put into pairs and interview each other. The aim is for them to discover the beauty at the core of the other individual. They are then helped to capture this in words, through poetry and also visually, through photography. It was launched with an exhibition at London Fashion Week last year.

The PEEL programme is being developed and rolled out to primary and secondary schools this spring. The Diocese of Gloucester, agency ASHA and the British Computer Society are currently collaborating in partnership to pilot the programme, aiming to produce National Curriculum standard resources that will enable schools to run the programme. Coming soon... FestivALL

Festiv
ALL
17 MAY - 17 JUNE 2018
IN AND AROUND GLOUCESTERSHIRE

We are inviting all our worshipping communities to be part of FestivALL, a month of events bringing people closer together and celebrating the communities in which we live and work. It aims to break down barriers in our communities across ethnicity, faith, ability, sexual orientation, class, age and gender and create opportunities to discover more about the people, places and organisations in our area. So far, up to 40 community and statutory organisations are interested in being involved.

Come along to a networking event.

- Friday 9 February, 1pm to 3pm at the Barnwood Trust, Ullenwood Manor Farm, Cheltenham GL53 9QT
- Saturday 24 February, 11am at St Mary de Lode Church, Gloucester, organised by Simon Culley of Inclusive Church

The big launch is on Thursday 17 May, in Gloucester Cathedral. Street food, bands, dancing and much more. More at www.festivall.org
